Welcome back!

Our week began with a BANG! We began on Monday making our own firework murals and practised our sound talk for the noises they would make.

We learnt about how an exclamation mark (which we also like to call 'a shouting stick') can enhance our reading and writing.

We collated a bank of good describing words using all our senses.

We used these to begin having a go at writing a simple sentences ourselves.

Do you remember who this man is?

What is the bonfire night rhyme?

Send us your ideas by email for your learning journal.

We explored different ways to make 5 and 10.

Sometimes with just 2 Numicon pieces and sometimes with 3

We have been word building.

Outdoors we have been making potions

MAKING FLOWER POTIONS

Our Room on the Broom Role Play has been a huge success with many potion making recipes being written down.

AND..... opportunities to use puppets to retell the story in our reading area.
